Windows Vista Product Key ad Serial Key Working for Windows Vista, Windows Vista Home Basic, Windows Vista Home Premium, Windows Vista Ultimate, Windows . See their website for more information (they can only supply a support email link).. What is Windows Server 2008/R2 product key and serial number Copy the serial number from the sticker on the back of your computer, if it was written with ink. The information you provide will be used to contact you about your request, but you can always change your mind and ask to be removed from our mailing list. Check if the serial number corresponds to the one on the sticker, if it is another one, please check if your computer is a genuine copy or a pirated one. One question i ask myself is how did they get the serial number from the sticker? Are they able to somehow read the information from the sticker when it is on the computer? I'm honestly curious if there is some kind of scanner and a piece of software that works in conjunction with it to read the serial number. Thanks for your help Click to expand... This is common practice, yes. As I understand it, it's even more common with laptops (but perhaps not as much with desktops), where the same sticker may get moved and worn and damaged, and then reattached to a new or refurbished computer. Your steps are correct. If the problem was removed, you need to register your new product key (by entering your serial number in the registry) and it should then work fine. I use this method myself and it has worked on every PC I've ever had.
